P. O. S. OF A. CAMPS GATHER.

No. 4 District of County Meet in Ambler.

Spirited Session Prepares Local Camps for the Meeting in Philadelphia on Feb. 22—Splendid Program—Unique Decorations.

Members of The Patriotic Order Sons of America, comprising district No. 4 met in Ambler on Monday evening. More than 350 members representing camps from Flourtown, Blue Bell, Jenkintown, Glenside, Hatboro, Jarrettown and Ambler assembled at the station, and from there proceeded to the Camp room of No. 215, headed by the Glenside Camp band of 40 pieces.

The meeting was called by the state executive board for the purpose of making arrangements and preparing for the class initiation to be held in the Metropolitan opera house, Philadelphia, on Tuesday evening, Feb. 22nd, when it is expected 1500 candidates will be received into the order.

While the meeting was called by the Executive board, never-the-less the members of the Ambler Camp made the night a gala one and one that will long be remembered by the visiting brothers. A splendid address on the principles of the order was delivered by Gabriel N. Moyer, national president Those taking part in the program, besides Miss Sarah Jones andn Miss Marie Wilson were members of the order. Harry Shuster, the pianist, rendered several selections and also accompanied the singers. The young ladies in their efforts were well received, as were also the members of the Adelphia quartet, whose singing also proved a delightful feature of the evening.

In opening the meeting there was introduced a unique feature, which illustrated one of the objects of the order and so impressed the members present that the resulted applause lasted several minutes. It was a spontaneous outburst and thrilled everyone present.

In the rear of the hall was a miniature school house. The background was an American flag, and flying from the highest peak were also the stars and stripes. There was, too, the usual belfry, so familiar in such buildings in the rural districts. In calling this meeting to order two of the members tolled the bell on the top of the school house with the streamers hanging from the same, and from an invisible wire were seen figures representing children plodding towards the school house.

At the close of the address and musical part of the program the members were invited to the banquet hall, where sandwiches and coffee were served. In following out the purpose of the meeting a pledge was made by each camp represented to provide its quota of candidates for the class initiation.

J. W. CRAFT LAID AT REST.

Remains Interred Saturday in Montgomery Cemetery.

One of the Most Successful Business Men of Ambler—Born in Lower Gwynedd, Was Identified With This Locality for 34 Years—Sketch of His Busy Life.

Services were held Saturday afternoon at his late home, Mt. Pleasant avenue, Ambler, over the remains off J. Watson Craft, whose death occurred Jan. 19 at 2.30 p. m. after a long illness. Many friends gathered at the house to pay their final respects to one who for 34 years had been an active business man in the community. Rev. G. A. Knerr, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, Ambler, read the 23d Psalm and offered a prayer. John L. Doan, of Ambler, made a few remarks on the activities of the deceased, paying a most respectful tribute to his life work. The remains were interred in Montgomery cemetery, Norristown.

The deceased was born, Dec. 1, 1847, in what is now the Gwynhurst, adjacent to Gwynedd Valley station, and was the son of Jacob Craft and Elizabeth Detwiler Craft. Later they moved to the recent Frank Houston farm, in Lower Gwyned township, now owned by T. B. Stephens and a portion of which Mr. Craft purchased some 20 years ago and built thereon the substantial and beautiful residence which he occupied at the time of his death.

The subject of this sketch was one of a family of six children, of whom were: Angeline, deceased, wife of the late Wm. Funk; Mary, deceased, wife of Albert Rile; Alfred and Evan deceased and Annie, wife of Horace G. Vancourt, of Philadelphia.

He was educated in the public schools and also attended the well known Loch school, Norristown, and also the Millersville State Normal school. As a young man he was employed in the James Hoover iron works Bridgeport, and advanced to be superintendent of the pipe mill and later was made superintendent of the whole plant.

With the general industrial stagnation in 1882 the works were closed, and Mr. Craft looked about for a business opportunity. The coal, feed and lumber yard at Ambler, then owned by Joseph Stackhouse, was for sale, and it was promptly acquired by Mr. Craft, who on June 5, 1885, moved to Ambler.

On May 8, 1872, he had married Mary Adelaide Griggs, of Norristown. Four children were born: William Watson, deceased; E. Frank, Adele E. and Joseph W., Jr., all of Ambler.

With his entry into the Ambler's commercial life, Mr. Craft was not long in taking his place as one of the leading business men of the whole community. He enlarged the business steadily and regularly added to the area of the yard, installing power for planing purposes, improving, enlarging and erecting new buildings and also entering the wholesale as well as engaging in the retail business until it became one of the very largest and most successful in the county.

Mr. Craft was a most active man in the community, serving on the board of the Ambler Independent school district, and on the incorporation of the borough was elected its first burgess. Later for many years he served in council, filling important committee appointments and being most active in all progressive community interests.

He was one of the promoters of the Wissahickon Fire company, being a charter member, and for some years served as president of the organization, which made marked progress under his leadership. For 15 years he was a member of the board of directors of the First National Bank of Ambler, serving as vice president and later as president. It was during the latter incumbency that the bank attained its roll of honor standing—its surplus being equal to its capital.

Mr. Craft was connected with the Pennsylvania Retail Lumbermen's association and also of the Pennsylvania Retail Coal Merchants' association. He became one of the directors of the Pennsylvania Lumbermen's association and represented it on the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association, making several trips with the organization along the Atlantic coast from Massachusetts to Florida.

As a result of failing health and following the return of his youngest son, Joseph W., Jr., from France and the latter's subsequent discharge from the service, Mr. Craft practically retired from business and Jan. 1, 1920, turning his coal, feed and lumber interests over to his sons under the firm name of J. W. Craft & Sons, Frank Craft having for many years been identified with his father in the conduct of the business.

The deceased was very modest in his tastes, leaning to the Friends in religious belief.

Localites Graduated at Peirce's School.

The annual graduating exercises of Peirce school of business admnistration were held in the academy of music, Philadelphia, Wednesday evening, and the 55th class, numbering 258 young men and young women, the largest class in the history of the institution, was graduated.

The principal address was delivered by Hon. Julius Kahn, member of congress from California, and chairman of the house committee on military affairs. Mr. Kahn took for his subject, "The Japanese Problem," and threw much light upon the differences between Japan and the United States as to the privileges that shall be enjoyed by the Japanese in this country. He emphasized the fact that there is no prejudice against the Japanese on account of race. Residents of the coast are not opposed to the admission of Japanese merchants, teachers, students and travelers, but they are opposed to the imigration in large numbers of Japenese laborers, who are willing to work for much less money than an American can afford to work for.

He also spoke on the California law which prohibits Japanese from owning land in California, and called attention to the fact that in Japan itself no foreigner is allowed to own a foot of land.

Mr. Kahn believes that the differences between the two countries can and will be amicably settled without resort to war.

The diplomas were presented to the members of the graduating class by Professor J. A. Luman, vice-principal of the school.

The members of the graduating class represented the state of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina Tennessee, Florida, California and Vermont. There are also 10 from Mexico, 3 from Porto Rico, 1 from England, 3 from Cuba and 1 from England, 3 from Cuba and and 1 from Chile.

Twelve of the members of the class were disabled soldiers who had been sent to the school by the federal board for vocational education. These young men have completed their courses of study, and now occupy useful positions in the business world.

The members of the graduating class from this locality are as follows: Mary L. V. Allen, Bryn Mawr; Dorothy Babb, Rosemont; Helen Bate, Conshohocken, Pauline B. Gamburg, Hatboro; Virginia S. Experiments Enable Them to Penetrate Structure of Concrete, Steel Rails and Armor Plate—Impregnable Depositary May Be Suggested.

Goverment Scientists in Washington and incidentally are learning how to prevent members of a shady profession from successfully plying their trade. Having spent months in constructing vaults of reinforced concrete and steel at the United States Bureau of Standards, experts are now attacking them with torch, drill and high explosives, in order to tell the Federal Reserve Board how to drill a thief proof depository for government funds.

The experiments are carried on in absolute secrecy, and admission to the tests is by card only. The cards bear the warning that the visitor takes all responsibility for his presence, and any injury which may result from the explosive used cannot be made the basis for a suit of damage against the Federal Reserve Board.

An appropriation of $75,000 recently was made to the Federal Reserve Board for experimental work in determining the best construction of safe deposit vaults. Last summer a Washington firm was given the contract to construct a specified number of these vaults. They were made of heavy concrete, reinforced with metal rails, and lined on the inside with armor plate steel. The work of getting on the inside of these vaults is now in progrss, andn a visitor to the Bureau of Standards will hear the sounds of numerous explosions emanating from the vicinity of the new building which stand to the north of the grounds.

So far the tests have been successful in the scientists, simulating so far as possible the conditions under which a burglar would work, have broken through the walls and gained entrance to what at first appeared to be impregnable defenses. The conditions of attack were that the "robbers" must approach the scene of their operations as quietly as possible, bringing with them their equipment. Arrived, they set about their preparations with all speed, set off the explosive, entered the vault and made off with the imaginary treasure in a specific specified time—the period being considered the time a gang of safe-blowers would have had their disposal under actual conditions.

From statistics compiled from the most up-to-date cases of professional safe-blowing, there are roughly three methods in common use; one, the oxy-acetylene; two, electric drill drill, and three,, the high explosive. In order to discover absolute mob-proof, burglar-proof safe the scientists, it is understood, are using three means of entering the vaults. Having found the type of construction which best withstands the single use of any of the three agencies, they will combine the most advantageous points of each in the construction of a vault which will frustrate the combined use of torch drill and explosives.

The experiments, which began last week, are expected to continue through the winter. The results will be kept secret.

County Fish and Game Men Feast.

One of the largest and most successful organizations of its kind in the state of Pennsylvania, The Montgomery County Fish, Game and Forestry association, held its 26th annual banquet Saturday evening, January 15, in the Grace Lutheran Church on Haws avenue, Norristown with an attendance of 375 members. The menu was excellent, the spirit of fraternalism prevailed throughout the entire program, and the display of trophies of the hunt was secured by local hunters of big game in Alaska during the past summer and fall. The annual report was the best ever handed in, and it was stated that the organization has never in its history been in a more flourishing condition, having over 500 members at the present time and being the largest in the state.

As the guests entered the room, at 6 o'clock, the first thing to attract their attention was a handsome display heads secured by Dr. J. R. Care and Adolph Muller of that borough on their recent trip to Alaska. The heads were mounted beautifully on large boards with a background of greens, and consisted of seven caribou, five mountain sheep, one huge wolf skin and three handsome specimens of moose. One of the latter is conceded to be the best moose head ever taken from the northern territory.

County Expended $1,000,000

During 1920, Montgomery county expended more than a million dollars. The county controller's office has figured that it cost $1,292,462.42 for expenses, during the year, leaving quite a measly looking balance for the nest egg for 1921.

The balance according to the advance report, will be only about 125,000, and most of this will be disposed of before the end of the present month. Last year's balance carried from 1919 was about $340,000.

The guestion of an increased tax rate or issuance of bonds to carry on special projects will be placed before the Commissioners, when they meet next month. Vice President Harman Y. Bready declared that additional funds must be secured, whether the tax method or bond system is employed.

Of the total running cost of the county, $94,589.62 wos for the county almhouse and $29,583.02 for the prison.

Not One Intoxicated.

Out of the 238 prisoners committed to the Bucks County Prison during 1920 not one was listed as being intemperate, a condition that has not been noted in the history of Bucks county's penal institution.

During 1920 there was a daily average of 25 prisoners on the prison docket. The largest number any day was 45 and the lowest was 13. In 1919 the highest number was 60 and the lowest was 11. The total for 1920 is 18 more than in 1919.

Nine women were incarcerated in the prison during 1920, four less than in 1919. Seventeen juveniles were committed in 1920 which is ten more than the previous year.

Commitments during the last year were as follows: Trial, 97; hearing, 53; summary convictions, 55; by Court 29; witnesses, 4.

These with the 19 "hold overs." made a population of 257.

Will Change Name of P. & W. Station.

The "DeKalb St." (Birdgeport) station of the Philadelphia and Western Railwayy is to have a new name, because of "its being confused with DeKalb street, Norristown, in the mind of the traveling public," acording to Julius Adams, vice president and general manager of the company.

The selection of the new name, however, will rest with the public, and the manner in which this will be finally determined is set forth in announcement to the patrons who are asked to register their choice before Feb. 1.

He seemed to take an active interest in the proceedings, having for years been a most active lodge man and frequently appeared in Ambler in fraternity and social visitations.

The death of J. Watson Craft, removes from the community, in a period of 10 years, the 12th member who, during some portion of his life, had been identified with the First National Bank of Ambler as a member of its board of directors. Miss Helen Pole, who is still confined in the Jewish hospital, as the result of the frightful accident she sustained sometime ag at the Lansdale depot, and which resulted in the amputation of her foot, is reported to be improving nicely and if convalence continues she will return to her home at a much earlier date than was first anticipated. The physicians and nurses at the hospital say that Miss Pole for one of her age has displayed the most wonderful fortitude. Despite the fact that she will go through life minus part of one of her limbs, which was amputated about six inches below the knee, she is cheerful and is always showing the same sunny disposition for which she has always been beloved by her schoolmates and this quality is further attested by the following letter which she sent to one of her fellow pupils at the Lansdale School of business, of which she was a student at the time of the accident: "Kitty Dear":- "I guess you'll be surprised to get this letter from me, but as I am allowed to write lying here in bed I thought I'd let you know that although the train did its best to kill me I am here, all but part of my left limb, which is off just below the knee. I have just a wee bit of pain, which is decreasing rapidly. Remember me to the girls and tell them I am feeling fine and I am trying to play the part of Pollyanna." Thank the Lord I still have one of my limbs, tout no one knows how wonderful the two are until one is lost. Write to me here at the hospital.

The officials of the club have been quietly at work since the season of 1920 closed getting together a team that will be second to none in the Montgomery County league. The first move made was to secure a manager, upon whom could be placed the responsibilities of securing players that will hold their own with the other players in the league. In Frank Lamb, of Germantown, the officers feel that they have such a man, and there is a feeling of confidence that when the bell rings for the start of the 1921 season there will be a surprise in store for the other five clubs in the league. Thus far the club is in a better condition financially than last year, which will greatly enable the officials and manager Lamb to carry out the plans now under consideration.

Justice for the Farmer.

As a rule ti is unwise for a nation to adopt the policy of legislating in favor of any single interest, however important to the prosperity of the nation that interest may be. Such a policy is likely to poduce factions and jealoussies within the state and a spirit of selfishness and greed within the favored industry. Security and good government are alike imperiled. Yet there are times when the health of a nation requires a course of legislation that may seem to transgress that general rue. We are about to enter on what may prove to be a prolonged period of falling prices. Labor has its own strong organizations to protect it against too rapid a drop in wages. The farmer is not so closely organized and therefore is more completely at the mercy of the market. In times of low prices it is always the farming interest, taken as a whole, that comes nearest to scraping the bottom.

Now, it is not a question of saving the farmer from hardship; it is a question of preserving if we can the farmer as he is, an independent proprietor. Throughout history we see the farming or yeoman class as the backbone of any rising nation; but as a high and complex civilization has grown up the tendency has been to place the interest of the countryman below the interest of the dwellers in he great cities. Little by little the farms come to be cultivated by tenants, by peasants, by serfs. A great urban civilization is to be sustained only on cheap food, and cheap food can be produced only by those who labor fr small wage and accept a low standard of living.

So far we in America have escaped that danger. Our millions of acres of homestead land made it possible to build up a splendid race of independant proprietors. The farmer does not mean to give up his place without a struggle, but he feels that he no longer has the share in directing the affairs of the coubtry that his forefathers had. He knows that the effort of the city dweller, capitalist and wage earner alike, is to win an easier life—which can be sustained only by making his own life harder. If the farmer the decay of the natioin will begin.

Legislation cannot do a great deal. It can and should open to the farmer all the business credit that can safely be given him, and it should correct any provisions of law that hamper him in getting his crop safely and promptly to market. But the farmer must refuse to let his general standards of living be materially reduced. He must become a better informed and more careful business man: he must increase his cooperative organizations and look for ways to diminish the number of profits between him and the real consumer.

As for the rest of us, we should learn that we must not expect to exchange a little labor for a great deal; that the city cannot sell to the farmer dear and buy from him cheap. That way lies the certainty of a decaying agriculture and a debased rural population.

It is a matter of education on both sides.

ALMAR TEA CO.

413 Butler Ave., Ambler, Pa.

On Oct. 24, 1919, we opened the first Almar store with the firm determination of giving the best values possible and in addition giving free delivery and telephone service. We have now grown to a chain of 40 stores, each one in turn proving its need in its special location. We have endeavored to make everyone see the advantages of free delivery, and we are compelled, after 15 months of persistent effort to acknowledge that the public while giving us good support, have failed to take advantage of the delivery; in fact, they do not want it. This is proved by the survey we have made of our business, which shows that 75 per cent of our customers prefer to carry goods with them. Recognizing this fact we have discontinued our delivery and phone service beginning Monday, Jan. 24, and will, instead, give additional benefits in the way of lower prices. We shall be able to sell our goods even at a lower cost, even though we made no charge for delivery.

We thank you for the patronage you have given us and beg to assure you that the store service can and will be improved. The constant impairment to our service, due to triple handling of delivery orders, is now eliminated and will reflect itself in the lower price and quicker service in the store. Watch our prices and take full advantage.

Warminster Driving Club.

Warminster Driving club directors met at Keny's Hotel, in Chalfont and completed plans for making improvements at the new Doylestown race track in the early spring. Fifteen new stalls will be erected and a new grandstandto seat 500 more persons will be built. Committees were appointed to take charge of the construction work. The association also made plans for their annual banquet to be held in February. The date and meeting place was not decided. Harry W. Kelly, of Chalfont, director of the association, said that many new horses will be entered in the races this year. Among the Philadelphia horsemen present were A. E. Leatherman, H. B. Wilgus and P. G. Weckerly, all of whom are members of the Warminster Driving Club.

Beiler Ice Cream Co. Expanding Rapidly

An example of extensive expansion in business in the last six months is evidenced in the output increase of the Beiler Ice Cream Co., Incorporated, of Conshohocken. The company was organized and incorporated fifteen months ago. The distribution at that time was confined to Conshohocken and vicinity. Later with the business expanding over all the surrounding territory the output gradually increased until it has reached a capacity of 5000 quarts of ice cream daily.

This product is being distributed by auto trucks within a radius of twenty miles, reaching the counties of Chester, Delaware and Philadelphia, also covering Montgomery county.

The reason for increased consumption of ice cream is attributed largely to development in the daily industry which have resulted in creating an articles of food, which in nutrition, is equal to many staple articles of diet.

Beiler's ice cream is produced under the most approved sanitary conditions and of the best grades of daily products and pure flavorings. Every effort will be made by the company to acquaint the public with facts concerning the manufacture of its produces and also of its food value.

Tresspas and "no-gunning" signs are on sale at the "Gazette" office, 10 cents each, six for 50 cents. In order for such signs to be effective, provided enforcement is desired, the wording on the placard is of vital importance. The trespass signs on sale at the "Gazette" office have been prepared in conformity with the state law, and legal proceedings may be commenced and conviction assured against trespassers provided such signs are displayed.

The many petty robberies about town and the more serious hold-ups reported from the surrounding country strongly suggest the necessity of keeping on one's person just the very least amount of currency and cash and very little jewelry. A display of the latter is very bad form at all times, being vulgar in the extreme, and a display of money on hand is just as unnecessary. In fact, it is essential to keep on one's person only a small sum of change, as payments in larger amounts can better be made by check on good financial institutions, which are organized for such purposes and which freely supply the necessary stationery for acounts. Private papers, treasured jewelry, bonds and other valuables of this character can be secured in a safe deposit box at any banking institution and the cost of rental per year is a very small amount connsidering the security, accessability and service.

Winter arrived last week with zero temperature—the first of the present season. So far conditions have been most favorable and comfortable in comparison with like seasons in the past five years, when considerable snowfall has been registered. Even last winter there were several snows about the holidays, although the roads opened up and there was no more inconvenience until the first week in February, when the heavy snow closed the roads and the resolutant ice which formed made travelink by wagon, sleigh or motor cars very unpleasant for the greater part of the month. It is hoped that no such serious inconvenience resulted this winter, although of late years there has been more of an intelligent effort on the part of supervisors of highways and especially county commissioners to keep the main highways open and for this means scrapers are the most useful especially in snows of ordinary depths So far as the coal situation is concerned, there seems to be more accumulation of stocks in local yards and it is evident that even now the reasonable demands of consumers can readily be met, but little coal is available for stocking up purposes—and with prices for the product as they are few housekeepers feel inclined to lay in a supply greater than is neccessary for the present needs.

Former Quakertown Man Dies in Switzerland.

Corporal Miles Erney, of Quakertown who died in Switzerland early in December from the effects of gas poisoning received during the World war, was accorded full military burial according to word received by Quakertown relatives.

He had a fine military record, and was attached to the 307th Engineers, and saw action in every major and minor operation in France.

Services were held at the American Church of the Holy Trininty in Paris, and were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Beekman, former pastor of the Church of the Nativity, Bethlehem, Pa. Interment was made in the American military cemetery, Suresnes, France, Where Chaplain Joseph M. Kangley, of Paris Post, No. 1. American Legion attended, and the French army provided a military escort for the remains, and a bugler.

The Paris papers state the Legionairies and Knights of Columbus placed wreaths upon the grave of this American hero, who sleeps peacefully in a foreign land that his heroism helped to save. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Milton Erney, of Quakertown, and left there about twenty years ago. A brother, Frank, is in the regular army.

Collides With Mail Auto.

Frank Kelly, mail messenger between the Conshohocken postoffice and railroad, had his Ford automobile damaged recently in a collision as he was delivering mail to the railroad. He was driving down Forrest street and as he approached Elm street he sounded his horn. A large touring car was proceeding westward on Elm street. The driver did not notice Kelly's car and drove into it, striking it squarely in the side. Kelly could not wait to ascertain the owner of the car as he had to hurry along with the mail. However, the driver acknowledged that he did not see the Kelly car.

Mr. Kelly placed his car in a garage to undergo repairs and will endeavor to have the owner of the offending car pay for the damage done his car. While Mr. Kelly has not the name of the owner he has the number of the car's license.

—Rev. E. S. Ramer has resigned as teacher of California school Richland township, and L. J. Koehler, of Quakertown, succeeds him.

CHILDREN NEVER HEARD BIRD SING

SWEPT BARE BY ARMIES

Jewish War Relief Campaign Planned to Feed and Clothe Thousands of Tiny Sufferers of War.

Philadelphia.—When you grinned at the six-year-old son of the house romping in the yard with his dog, or watched his small sister carefully dividing her attention between ribbon bows for the house "tabby" and the robin on the lawn, did it ever occur to you that somewheee in the world there are little folks of the same age who have never seen a dog nor a cat nor heard a bird sing? Yet, there are some hundreds of thousands of youngsters in war-stricken Europe today who are ignorant of the existence of the furred and feathered creatures which help to make an American kiddie's day worth while.

Jewish relief workers who have returned from the Eastern and Central European countries cite the absence of domestic animals and birds to illustrate the desolate barrenness of the countries that were swept again and again by the warring armies for nearly five years. Jacob Bashein, who had charge of a unit for the Joint Distribution committee, the sole agency disbursing relief funds by the Jewish War Relief committee of Philadelphia and other Jewish Relief organizations, has described the conditions there.

"In that bare stretch of country where there are scarcely any trees, no habitations other than the miserable dug-outs in which returned refugees exist, the 'no man's land of Poland'—we did not see a single cat or dog, and in all the time we were there we never heard a bird sing. Armies have swept bare the country and trampled the ground to the consistency of rock, while shellfire has blasted the countryside. No animal, even domestic animal, was left there. So there are children today of five or six years of age who have never seen a dog nor a cat and have never heard the singing of a bird!"

ROAST DOG USED FOR FOOD IN WAR DEVASTATED AREAS JEWISH RELIEF WORKERS SAY

Roast dog is expensive enough and scarce enough to be a delicacy in some parts of Europe, according to reports that have come to the Jewish War Relief Campaign headquarters of the Philadelphia district. Canine flesh actually costs $1.00 a pound.

At that, many of the Jewish war sufferers are debarred eating dog meat. This is due to the fact that Jews will eat only kosher meat. Consequently, many of the Jewish population have practically forgotten the taste of meat. This is also true of white bread.

The Jewish War Relief Campaign for the Philadelphia district, of which Dr. Cyrus Adler is chairman, is due to be held during the week of November 17th.

Organization of the various committees for this "drive" in the city as well as in the counties of Berks Bucks, Delaware, Chester, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Montgomery and Northampton is already under way.

INVADING ARMIES USE OLD SYNAGOGUES OF EUROPE FOR BAKERIES AND BATHHOUSES

Starving children without homes and in rags, is not the only terrible aftermath of the warring armies of Europe, according to the reports from American Jewish Relief workers received at the Philadelphia district headquarters of the Jewish War Relief campaign.

School and churches have suffered. Many of the famous Jewish synagogues of Poland and Lithuania were left in the ruins by the five years of strife that passed around them. Some of the edifices which, were of pilgrimage and veneration to Jews all over Europe, have been destroyed by shell-fire to such an extent that they can probably never be restored. Others, with total disregard for the sanctity that is supposed to protect the sacred buildings of every creed, were put to uses that have left them stripped of all their former grandeur.

The famous synagogue of Bilkobist erected early in the 17th century, for instance, was converted into a bathhouse for soldiers. Gombin synagogue was turned into a bakers of the invaders, and sacred relics and statues were removed to make room for mixing boards and ovens.

This ruin of the synagogues is typical of the situation of what Jewish war sufferers of Europe are facing today. Furthermore, the cry for aid has come overseas to Philadelphia and adjacent counties, and during the week of November 17th the Jewish War Relief campaign will be launched to raise at least a million and a half dollars to relieve this distress.

Telford's Tribute to Dead Hero.

Telford's first full military funeral was held Saturday afternoon, January 22, at 2 o'clock, when the body of Private Russell D. Wentzel, aged 19 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Wentzelzel, of Telford, was buried their with full military honors in Trinity Reformed Church cemetery.

A veteran of the World War, Private Wentzel enlisted in December, 1917 and was sent to France several months later with a regiment of engineers. He saw active service in France and besides being the first soldier to leave Telford, he was the first to pay the supreme sacrifice. He died in an American hospital in France on June 19 1918.

Draped in a large American flag, the body which had arrived at Hoboken Pier, N. J., on December 18, 1920, arrived in Telford accompanied by a soldier from the Hoboken army headquarters.

Plumber's Shop Robbed of Jewelry.

Thieves entered the plumber store at Elm and Fayette streets, Conshohocken. It is supposed the entrance was gained by climbing over a roof in the rear. A revolver, a gold watch and two valuable stickpins were stolen from the drawer under the counter. Little else of value was secured by the thieves.

Effects of Geographic Factors on Development.

Story of Central America's Growth in Prosperity and Importance in Last Two Centuries Is a Chronicle of Engineering Achievement in Outside World.

"When the American small boy eats his daily quota of bananas, and when his father and mother sip their breakfast, luncheon, or dinner coffee, they are making important contributions to the prosperity of fellow Americans of whom they know very little—the residents of the five Central American republics which have lately been discussing the formation of a sort of 'United States of Central America,'" says a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society.

"Central America illustrates strikingly the effects of geographic factors on a region's development," continues the bulletin. "All the five republics. He on the relatively narrow isthmus between the narrow ribbon of Panama on the south and Mexico on the north. The Spanish settlements made soon after the discovery of America were all on the Pacific of the isthmus, for the most part on the plateaus and mountain slopes and in the mountain valleys on that region, which temper an otherwise tropical climate. Practically the entire Atlantic side of the isthmus was a low plan, covered with a dense tropical jungle. This acted as a great 'Chinese Wall' erected by nature which discouraged or actually cut off intercourse with the Atlantic coast and turned the faces of all the countries toward the Pacific.

"The isolation started by nature was continued by the colonial policy of the Spaniards, who for three hundred years permitted the Central American settlers to trade only with the mother country and greatly restricted even that commerce. The various groups of settlements which finally became the Salvador, Honduras. Nicaragua, and Costa Rica—were also effectively separated from each other by the mountainous nature of the country and the lack of means of communication.

"At the time of the throwing off of the Spanish yoke in 1821, therefore Central America was made up of a group of communities of rather primitive development scattered along the Pacific Ocean. The settlements were as effectually cut off from the United States as if they had been many thousands of miles away instead of being only across the Caribbean Sea.

"The story of Central America's growth in prosperity and importance in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries is a chronicle of engineering achievement in the outside world and a romance of horticulture in the isthmus itself. With the settlement of the Pacific coast of the United States, the building of the Panama Railroad, and after the construction of a trans-Mexico railway, the Panama Canal, and railways across Guantemala and Costa Rica, Central America has become easily accessible.

"Shortly before the construction of the Panama Railroad coffee was introduced into Central America from the West Indies and was found to grow to perfection in the lava soil on the slopes of the volcanic mountains along the Pacific coast of most of the region. Coffee soon became the export of prime importance and has brought much money into Central America. The acquisition of a higher standard of living in the four republics in which conditions are favorable for coffee culture is directly traceable to the little green bean.

"The remainder of Central America's horticultural romance has as its motif, —the banana. In order that the great American hunger for that slender golden fruit might be appeased, large fruit growing and distributing corporations from the United States acquired extensive tracts of land in the Atlantic plain, reclaimed it from the jungle, and planted great banana groves which produce millions of bunches of bananas yearly.

"The by-products of this development have been as valuable to Central America as the money that has flowed directly to laborers and to the government. Important cities have sprung up along the Atlantic coast, railroads have been built, and what is probably most important of all, lines of fast well equipped steamers, carrying both passengers and freight have been established between the Atlantic ports and those of the United States. In effect the banana has shifted Central America thousands of miles closer to the outside world.

JENKINTOWN.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Jenkintown National bank was held at the banking house, and was followed by a dinner at the Old York Road County club. The following directors were elected for the ensuing year: J. Milton Brooke, William F. Morgan, Edwin S. Halloweil, Samuel L. Schively, Israel H. Ely, George W. Elkins, Jr., Frank S. Gentry, Robert Sewell, Wayne Herkness, John J. Campbell, Israel Hallowell, Wharton Sinkler and L. R. Dutton.

Mrs. Samuel L. Schively has been undergoing treatment as the Jewish Hospital.

Mrs. Robert McCurdy and her daughter, Miss Jane McCurdy, left on January 4th, for Los Angeles, California, where they will spend the winter returning in June through the Canadian Rockies.

Mrs. Mary S. Carhart, the mother of Mrs. D. E. Waredl, of Greenwood avenue died suddenly at her home in Burlington, N. J., Tuesday, Jan. 11, and was buried the following Saturday. Mrs. Carhart was well known in Jenkintown, being a frequent visitor here.

Mrs. Thomas Barry and family moved on Thursday from 606 West avenue to 315 West avenue. Fred Geyer, the proprietor of the bakery has leased the entire building 606 West avenue, from Mrs. Barry.

L. V. T. Runs at Loss.

At the annual meeting of the Lehigh Valley Transit company, whose lines extend from Slatington to Philadelphia. P. B. Sawyer, until lately vise president, was elected president. He succeeds Harrison R. Fehr, who resigned last summer on account of his health.

The directors reported to the stockholders that the transportation business of teh company continued during the year to be operated at a loss, and the entire business of the company resulted in a considerably reduced balance after operating without any provision for dividends.

Bucks County Board Discusses a New Road.

Extensive improvements which if they materialize will be a credit to Bucks county and to Philadelphia, were contemplated at a conference of Bucks county commissioners and an engineer of the state highway department.

The big project under discussion is the extending, by eliminating a large curve in the road crossing Poquessing creek, the Lincoln highway to the Bucks county line. This famous road crosses into Bucks county at the creek It is proposed by the city of Philadelphia to eliminate a large curve, by crossing a strip of farm land and doing away with a curve about one-half mile in length.

Of this new project about 800 feet of the road will be in Bucks county. The state highway department will build and pay for this, but Bucks county must divide the expense of a new bridge over the creek, with the city of Philadelphia. The highway department has approved the plans. The Bucks county commissioners will meet the city officials in a few weeks and listen to their proposition. The commissioners seem to look at the project favorably, but do not feel sure that they want to expend a large sum of money on a road that so few Bucks county residents receive the benefit.

The commissioners also looked over the Glen Lake grade crossing, east of Langhorne and the Janney Station bridge, west of Langhorne. The state highway department proposes to eliminate both of these obstacles during the next year.

The Careless Smoker.

Have you ever seen a man light a cigar or cigarette and then throw the match away while at was still burning? Have you every watched a smoker knock the ashes from his pipe without for a moment heeding the bright sparks carried away by the wind Have you ever noticed how people throw away glowing stumps cigarette and cigar stumps without taking the trouble to notice where they fall?

Of course you have—many times a day; perhaps you have been guilty of this same practice. On the streets, in houses, barns, on trains and steamers in shops and stores, in fact everywhere thee little firebrands are constantly being dropped by people who really know better but are merely careless.

The next time you see a man throw a lighted match over his shoulder, just say to yourself, or to him, if you know him well enough:

"Do you know that you are an enemy? Do you know that you—and others like you—are costing the United States $165,000 a week, which is $16.00 a minute, by causing fires? Do you know that you are killing people, causing explosions, destroying homes and wrecking factories.

Probably the man will look at you in amazement: he might even be tempted to resent your frankness, but you would be "doing your bit" for your country, since the advice would be wholesome and the words true.

Every smoker should be careful where he throws matches and lighted cigarette or cigars.

A bed was made to rest in and sleep in not to smoke in.

Cultivate a fire preventing conscience. This is one of the impelling duties of a good citizen.

Manufacturers Elect.

The Pennsylvania Manufacturers' association, at its annual meeting, in Philadelphia, Monday, re-elected H. B. Tyson and Joseph Rambo, both of Norristown, as directors, Joseph R. Grundy, of Bristol, was re-elected president.

Auto Thieves Abandon Stolen Car.

Spencer L. Jones, a well-known manufacturer, and his wife, of Conshohocken, were visiting friends in Norristown, about 9 o'clock one evening he noticed his automobile, which he parked outside was gone. He got in touch with the police and while at city hall the telephone rang and a woman reported that two men were working in a suspicious manner with a car at Chestnut and Arch street. The chief and Jones made a hurried trip to the scene. The former jumped from the car before reaching the stolen car and the men saw him and made their escape. The men had disarranged the wiring system of the car, otherwise it was not damaged.

Would Scrap Present School Laws.

The complete scrapping of all the compulsory education laws of the state and the substitution of a simple law making it mantatory that all children attend school at the age of 6 and remain until their elementary studies are completed was urged by Dr. Thos. E. Finegan, state superintendent of public instruction.

"The present laws of the state, which compel children to attend school are far too complex to be properly carried out," said Dr. Finegan.

"At the present moment one law applies to the cities and another to the educational advantage of the metropolitan districts is far greater than that of the rural. Such laws are distinctly unfair to the majority of the population. I stand now and always for equal educational advantages for all children in the state."

Establishment of summer schools so as to give further training to the 29,000 public school teachers who are not up to present qualifications was suggested by Dr. Finegna.

Fever Epidemic Wanes.

The epidemic of scarlet fever and scarlatina at the borough of Perkasie is on the wane. The schools, moving picture houses and other public places have been closed. Prior to the strict quarantine order closing the public places there were more than fifty cases. During the past week several new cases were reported but the decrease is pronounnced.

Probated.

Nathan Yorkey, late of Schwenksville, leaves personal property and real estate valued at $2100, to be divided into three shares. One share goes to his wife, Mary R. Yorgey, another share to a son, Irvin D., of Allentown and the third to the children of his deceased daughter, Flora D. Allebach.

Bucks County. Balance $24,292 End of Year.

The office of the County Treasurer A. Harry Clayton where all the bills charged to Bucks county are paid has started the new year with a balance on hand amounting to $24,292.11, with all the bills paid. This is an increase over the previous year of $10,027.80. It is a rather handsome bank account to start work with considering the great amount of money expended during 1920.

During 1920 the force of the county treasurer's office sent out checks and paid bills amounting to almost a half million dollars, or $488,292.11 to be exact. In 1919 the total expenditures were $376,562.32.

Opossum Feast Clears Away Murder Mystery.

Wyncote, one of Philadelphia's most beautiful suburbs, had a muder mystery on its hands recently. Business men, hurrying for the in-bound train early in the morning halted suddenly at the corner of Glensie and Electric avenues when they saw the evidence of what might have been a ghastly murder.

In the roadway was a pool of blood, and near it lay two cobblestones and a club. No time was lost in acquainting Chief Hallowell, at police headquarters, of the discovery. He and four subordinates hastened to the scene, and there discovered the footprints in the road. They followed the tracks to a grass patch, and there lost the clue. Neighboring towns and cities were notified that somebody had committed a murder. It was presumed that the body had been thrown into Tacony creek, a mile away.

While the police were still searching for the body Wendell Whidden cleared up the mystery. He told Chief Hallowell that he had killed an opossum early in the morning as he was returning home, and that he was at that he was about to sit down to a genuine opposum dinner.

Several years ago C. D. Glass, Gardiner, Me., contracted a severe cold and cough. He tried various medicines but instead of getting well he kept adding to it by getting fresh colds. Nothing he had taken for it was of any permanent benefit until a druggist advised him to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Baseball is now becoming the talk among local fans and there are many guesses as to the probable line up of the Fort Washingon eam for next season. Many of the fans feel that now is the time for the local management to get busy and hunt up good material for a strong team. It is also suggested that the financial part be looked after at this time in order that there may be no hindrance to the success of the club from that end.

In the arrest of Joseph Piper at Ambler last week by the state police it is lekely that the hold-up of Joseph Brown, which took place on Spring avenue last month, will probably be cleared. It is alleged that Piper, who is a colored boy 17 years of age, confessed to the crime, stating that he was on his way to see his sister, who lives at Hoopeston, on the evening in question when he saw Brown coming along apparently under the influence of liquor and believing that he had his pay from the mill upon his person he set upon him with with a club striking Brown over the head several times and then he relieved him of a small sum of money. The police are convinced that Piper's story is true, but as in his other cases they believe that some one assisted him. However, he does not implicate Mike Tamborino, who has been arrested with him for the Ambler robberies.

Several employes of the Pennsylvania Railroad company residing here have been laid off. It is also reported that the company has made a 20 per cent. cut in wages, to be followed with a 10 per cent cut later.

Beiler's
Ice Cream
in the making

In this series of Articles is explained many advantages given in the making of Beiler's high - grade, delicious Health Food.

Homogenization - Assimilation.

The butterfat globules contained in cream are very small in size, approximately eighty to one hundred millions are found in one cubic centimeter. These fat globules hang in clusters, causing cream to lose some of its smoothness.

The principle of Homogenization is to force cream, under a high pressure of about two thousand lbs. per square iuch, through exceedingly small microscopic openings. By so doing the fat globules are broken up so finely that their buoyancy or gravity force is not great enough to overcome the resistance of the surrounding iiquid and they fail to respond to their former position, thus remaining in a homogenerhus emulsion.

Casein is an important property in the composition o cream which is originally suspended in minute particles. These while passing through the very small aperture under the high pressure, are likewise broken up very finely, together with the fat globules.

The breaking up of the fat globules and particles of Casein and emulsifying into a homogeneous mass makes a very smooth cream which is considered of great importance in the making of BEILER'S High-Grade Ice Cream.

In addition to making a more smooth and palatable Ice Cream its special value is that these properties are much more easily digested and assimilated.

Food is of little value unless much of it can be assimilated.
